IN THE QUICKSANDS.

The story properly begins at midnight on the San Luis Obispo coast, California, twenty years ago, when the September moonlight shone down upon Stoner's cattle ranch, near the Pacific ocean, in the rugged Santa Lucia mountains.

Stoner had been a Texas ranger, and could hold his own extremely well in that rough frontier community. He had carried off a pretty Spanish wife from the Chihuahua region years before, had brought her to the rocky California coast, and had purchased a settler's claim and an old adobe house built by a Spanish Hidalgo half a century ago.

Here he farmed, raised cattle on the unused government lands, and kept a sort of hotel, for several mountain trails joined at that point the broad highway which led from the county seat, twenty miles south, to the northern settlements in the pines. He had five daughters, too—the youngest, Theresa, known as Tessa, a girl of 17. That added to the attraction, and almost every night the dark eyed, half Spanish girls sang and danced, and old Stoner managed to hear all the news that was afoot, and somehow most of the loose coin of the region ultimately found its way into his pockets. He was a deep one, that same Ephraim Stoner, quiet, sly and patient, secret in his methods and deadly in his blow.

Stoner's wife and his four eldest daughters were uneducated and in complete subjection to his will. But Tessa had more brains and energy than all the rest put together, and quite as much beauty, and so the old Texas ranger took a certain pride in her, and had even allowed her to attend a district school for two years.

This midnight when, as I have said, the story begins, a person of a prying disposition might have discovered several interesting performances in progress around the Stoner abode. On the north side of the house Tessa was leaning from her window conversing in low tones with a blonde, fair haired and sturdy young man on horseback.

"Tom, do you know my father? He is not the careless, warm hearted man you may suppose. I must admire his ability, but that is all. I warn you, Tom, there never was a more dangerous man. He may be where he hears every word you say, though if he is he will not speak to you or me about it. But if he knew you cared for me he would be your enemy. He has other plans for me. He wants me to marry for money." Tom Warren had once been the school teacher in the mountain district, miles away, where Tessa had been one of his pupils. Thrown upon his own resources from his childhood, he had developed a strong, earnest character, and was already so popular in the county that he had just been elected sheriff, though the youngest man on the ticket.

While Tessa and her lover were talking, a scene of a different nature was being enacted on the south side of the old adobe, which overlooked a deep ravine, and a camp of five or six men in a field below. For several years these men had spent their summers there, ostensibly hunting, fishing and exploring the country with their dogs and guns. Every one knew them, and most persons liked them. Tessa did not.

Stoner, though it was midnight, sat in the moonlight on an old rawhide chair outside the door, smoking his pipe and meditating—a tough, sinewy, grizzled night owl of a man.

"That infernal knucklehead at the camp ought to have reported before now," he thought to himself as he smoked. A man came out of the brush and spoke deferentially.

"Capt'n, good evening."
"You're late."
"Dick was shot."
"Well?"

"Just as the driver threw off the box. Shot by a passenger in the neck and shoulder."

"He mustn't stay here to get us into trouble. Take a boat and carry him to the point and leave him in the cave there."

"Yes, capt'n."
"How much aboard?"
"About $2,000 for the Josephine mine."

"Send it over the cliff before morning and I'll divide it up soon. But you be extra careful; that new sheriff is a smart one."

"All right, capt'n," and the man went back to camp.

A moment later, just as Stoner was going into the house, there was a low thud of horse's hoofs, and Tom Warren, the young sheriff, rode down the trail, around the corner of the old adobe building, into the country road that led to the west. He had at last yielded to Tessa's entreaties to "Go, go this minute, Tom."

Impassive as Stoner was, he felt a little startled by the sight.

"Where in the devil did you come from, sheriff? Anything up in this part of the country?"

"Oh, no; not a particle. I've been visiting my old school in the mountains, and took the trail home down Cayucos."

This was plausible enough, for there was a blind trail that entered the canyon just east of the angle of the house. Stoner felt a little relieved.

"Won't you put up and stay with us all night?"

"No, Mr. Stoner, I must go down to Kestral to see my friends there. It's only an hour's ride."

"That settles it," thought Stoner.

A RESPONSIBLE GOVERNMENT.

Speaker Reed in his address to the House of Representatives at the close of Congress said he felt confident that the highest recommendation will be given the majority of the House, not for the measures it passed, but because it took a long stride in the direction of a responsible government.

The actions of Speaker Reed in the House were as despotic as those of the Autocrat of Russia, whose will is absolute, and who considers his government the most responsible on earth. Reed's rules, the adoption and enforcement of which he declares to be a long stride toward a responsible government, were denounced in the Senate by Stewart, Jones, Teller and Wolcott, as unprecedented in English speaking legislative bodies. They silenced not only the Democratic minority, but men of his own party who displayed sufficient independence to think and speak for themselves. They enabled the Speaker to count as present to make up a quorum, men whom he would not recognize a moment before when they rose to their feet and addressed him. They stifled debate on measures of the greatest importance to the people, as for instance, the Senate free coinage bill, and were used to pass bills which the Speaker favored, when less than a majority of the members of the House, voted. They placed it in the power of one man to control legislation in the House, and prevent the passage of bills and resolutions that did not suit him. They were the longest strides ever made in the United States toward a dictatorship, and the assumption of the Speaker that they were in the direction of a responsible government, only proves that the man who made the assertion has very exalted ideas of his capabilities, as he was the governing and controlling power in the House of Representatives. Are we to believe Mr. Reed and admit that the Congress of the United States, which, since the formation of the Government, never tolerated gag-rule until he became Speaker, was not in all those years a responsible form of government?

A HINT TO THE LEGISLATURE.

A communication from an old-time Republican, who is disgusted with his party and personally declares that the Legislature has severed the last link which connected him with it, is printed in the JOURNAL. It directs attention to the fact that for the first time in a score of years two-thirds of a legislative session has passed without the question of reducing and regulating fares and freights on railroads within the State having been mooted. It is true that the Legislature never accomplished anything in that direction, and the general belief is, never intended to do so, but it stirred up railroad men and made the lobby lively and interesting to have a bill to reduce fares and freights introduced.

A convention of State Railroad Commissioners, which met in Washington this week, adopted resolutions declaring it competent for Congress and the various State Legislatures to regulate within their respective spheres the rates for freight and passenger traffic and travel, subject only to legal and constitutional limitations, and that uniformity is desirable in Congressional and State legislation on the subject of rates.

This ought to encourage the Legislature to resurrect and reintroduce one or more of the old bills to regulate fares and freights pigeon-holed by committees at former sessions, not that the people expect the passage of any such bill, but to direct attention from the failure to call a Constitutional Convention, and the disposition to create a State Board of Assessors to reside at the Capital and assess all railroads in the State and increase or reduce the assessed valuation of the property of private individuals.

THE IRONCLAD OATH.

An exchange says "a resolution was offered in the Nevada Legislature last Tuesday doing away with the ironclad oath heretofore taken by all officers in Nevada. If this is repeated, a dualist will be eligible to hold office."

Article XV, Section 2, of the Constitution provides that members of the Legislature and all officers, executive, judicial and ministerial, shall, before they enter upon the duties of their respective offices, take and subscribe to an oath or affirmation that they have not fought a duel, nor sent or accepted a challenge to fight a duel, nor been a second to either party, nor in any manner aided or assisted in such duel, nor been knowingly the bearer of such challenge or acceptance, since the adoption of the Constitution of the State of Nevada, and that they will not be so engaged or concerned directly or indirectly, in or about any such duel during their continuance in office.

Though the majority of the Legislature by refusing to canvass the vote for a Constitutional Convention, thereby disregarding the Constitution and the will of the majority of the people, it is hardly probable that they will attempt to set aside a plain provision of the Constitution by a resolution without submitting it to a vote of the people. We believe there has not been a duel fought in Nevada since the "unpleasantness" between Joe Goodman and Tom Fitch on the Comstock in early days, but whether there has or not the power to change the official oath prescribed by the Constitution for officials is vested in the people.

THE CRAWFORD DIVORCE CASE.

A $35,000 Fire—The World's Fair Committee on Ceremonies Report—The Sacramento River Still Rising.

The Damage by Flood in Arizona.
Special to the Journal.

CLIFTON, A. T., March 5.—It is estimated that $100,000 damage has been done. The principal destruction of property consisted of homes of laborers, dam and flume of the Arizona Copper Company, pumps of the Copper King Company, dam of Detroit Copper Company, the approaches to the A. & N. M. railway bridge across the river and the iron bridge at Guthrie across the Gila. Clifton depot with its contents, Wells, Fargo & Co.'s safe containing books, papers and other matter. The business portion of the town was damaged little, though many structures used as abodes are gone or damaged beyond repair, no insurance. The loss is severe on poor people as they lost their all. The Arizona Copper Company and the A. & N. M. Railroad Company are the heaviest losers. Three to four hundred men are working on the road and repairing the bridges. It will be two weeks before a train goes through. Transfer of mail, express and supplies will be made in a few days. No storm here but light warm rains and south winds have caused a thaw of snow in the mountains north of here. The telegraph line buried for three miles in York's Canyon has just been put up at Guthrie. Three suspension bridges on the San Francisco river at Clifton were swept away. Under where the north Clifton bridge stood is now terra firma. The channel has shifted to the base of the mountain on the east side.

The Famous Crawford Divorce Case.
Special to the Journal.

LOAN, March 5.—A long statement has been issued and is now being circulated among the electors of the forest of the Dean Division of Gloucestershire, on behalf of Sir Charles Dilke. It is learned that Sir Charles Dilke supplied the Liberal organization with a statement, for private circulation, vindicating himself against the charges made against him in connection with the famous Crawford-Dilke divorce case. Referring to the notorious "Fanny" pamphlet, it says she is now happily married and known as Mrs. Stock. The pamphlet says Mrs. Crawford, during the divorce proceedings, made an assertion that "Fanny" had been Sir Charles Dilke's mistress, and crowned her own infamy by swearing that she (Mrs. Crawford) and "Fanny" had been in bed together with him. "Fanny" has made a statutory declaration giving a full account of herself and a sworn denial of Mrs. Crawford's story. The general opinion seems to be that the pamphlet will re-open the agitation of years gone by, and will probably win over to Sir Charles' side a number who previously condemned him, but that it will fail to completely vindicate him.

A Memorial Presented the President.
Special to the Journal.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—M. Blackstone of Chicago to-day visited the President in company with Secretary Blaine, and presented a memorial in behalf of Russian Jews. He explained that the memorial was the result of the conference of Christians and Jews recently held in Chicago, and called especial attention to the fact that it did not antagonize Russia, but only sought in a peaceable way to give the Jews control of their homes in Palestine. The President listened attentively to Blackstone's remarks, and promised to give the subject serious attention.

Destroyed by Fire.
Special to the Journal.

STOCKTON, Cal., March 5.—The J. C. Hoult & Sons Combined Harvester Works, located on the south side of Mormon channel, in this city, were destroyed by fire early this morning, together with 22 harvesters, two of which belonged to farmers. There had been no fire in the works since 6 o'clock last evening and the flames burst out at half past three this morning. It is believed to have been incendiary. The loss is $35,000 with no insurance. It will be rebuilt at once.

The Sacramento River Rising.
Special to the Journal.

SACRAMENTO, March 5.—The Sacramento river is now at the twenty-six foot eleven and one-half inch mark, just half an inch of high water mark and slowly rising. The people here feel no apprehension however, as all levees on the Yolo side of the river would break and afford relief before any on this side would give way.

The Conservatives Win.
Special to the Journal.

VICTORIA, B. C., March 5.—The election in Victoria District to-day resulted in a Conservative victory. The Colonist bulletined the returns as received, and cheer after cheer went up from the eager crowd as the announcements from each polling division were posted. At 6 o'clock returns from all the polling places, but two, gave Earle, (Con.), 1,042; Templeman, (Lib.), 446; Prior, (Con.), 1,031; Marchant, (Lib.), 407. Marchant and Templeman lose their deposit of $200, as to save it they had to receive at least half as many votes as the lowest successful candidate.

A Governor's Signature Not Honored.
Special to the Journal.

ALBANY, March 5.—A requisition was presented to Governor Hill to-day, signed by Morgan O. Buckley, the Governor of Connecticut, for the return of John T. Colbert, accused of horse theft. Governor Hill again refused to honor Buckley's signature as Governor on the ground that Buckley was not a proper executive authority to issue a writ. With his refusal Governor Hill filed a lengthy opinion in which he says Buckley is a mere usurper.

The Appropriations Exceed One Billion.
Special to the Journal.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Sayers, of Texas, the leader of the minority Democratic House Appropriations Committee, prepared a statement which shows the total appropriations made during the Congress just closed were $1,006,270,471 against $817,983,359 during the preceding Congress. Included in the appropriations for the Fifty-first Congress are $15,727,000 for refund of direct tax, and $10,000,000 for sugar bounties.

The World's Fair.
Special to the Journal.

CHICAGO, March 5.—The report of the World's Fair Committee on Ceremonies is completed. It provides for a gigantic military display and parade under the Director and Major General of the army, on Tuesday, October 11, 1892; regular dedicatory exercises Wednesday; grand ball Thursday and the whole to conclude with a general civic and military display on Saturday.

The Appropriations.
Special to the Journal.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The following is an approximate statement of the appropriations made by the recent Congress, both sessions: Regular bills, $766,700,000; permanent appropriations, $223,000,000; total, $989,700,000.

Rainfall in February.

The rainfall during the month of February on the Pacific Coast as reported by Lieutenant John P. Finley, U. S. Army Signal Service, is as follows:

The rainfall has been in excess of the normal in all districts except Western Washington and Northwestern Oregon. The long spell of drought was broken on the 14th, and in the last half of the month enough rain has fallen to carry the amount decidedly beyond the normal in Southern Oregon, California and Arizona. If this large precipitation could have been distributed over the month much less damage would have resulted to property and greater benefits derived from the greatly needed moisture. The excess varies from 0.19 inches at Winnemucca to 4.84 inches at Los Angeles, 6.83 inches at Red Bluff and 6.78 at Roseburg. The deficiency ranges from 0.19 inches at Fort Canby to 3.55 inches at Olympia. The rainfall at San Francisco has been exceeded in six other years during the past forty years, the largest amount, 12.52 inches, occurred in February, 1878, and the next largest amount, 9.24 inches, in 1887. The largest monthly rainfall was 11.50 inches at Roseburg. The greatest in twenty-four hours was 3.80 inches at Red Bluff on the 14th. Rain fell on 23 days in Washington, on 26 days in Oregon, on 25 days in California, on 22 days in Nevada and on 10 days in Arizona.

DIRGE.

If thou wilt ease thine heart
Of love and all its smart,
Then sleep, dear, sleep;
And not a sorrow
Hang any tear on your eyelashes;
Lie still and sleep.
Sad soul, until the sea wave washes
The rim of the sun to-morrow,
In eastern sky
But wilt thou cure thine heart
Of love and all its smart,
Then die, dear, die;
Thy deeper, sweeter,
Than on a rosebush to be dreaming
With folded eye;
And then alone, amid the beaming
Of love's stars, thou'lt meet her
In eastern sky.

And trembling more with rapture than with fear,
Desire some token of their friends most dear,
Who there some time have made their happy stay,
And much have longed for them to come that way,
What shall it be, this sign of hope and cheer?
Shall it be tone of voice or glance of eye?
Shall it be touch of hand or gleam of hair
Blown back from spirit brows by heaven's fair
Things which of old we knew our dearest by?
Oh, naught of this; but, if our love be true,
Some secret sense shall cry, "Thy you and—you."
—John W. Chadwick.

Ministerial Association.

Yesterday's session, after the devotional exercises, opened with criticisms on "A Review of Theories of Henry George," read by C. L. Logan. The paper showed a careful study of the theories presented in "Progress and Poverty." The general opinion was that the "Single Tax" idea would not bring about the desired result, and calm the conflicting elements between capital and labor. The paper by Rev. J. M. Wilson on "Preaching Demanded by the Times," was very much appreciated by the ministers. Rev. James H. N. Williams read a paper on "The Influence of Skepticism on Character," which met with commendation. Mrs. H. Skelton made some interesting remarks concerning the work of the W. O. T. U. Rev. E. W. Van Deventer, D. D., read an important paper on "Elements of Success in Preaching." He clearly pointed out that success is never achieved in anything save by diligence along the royal road of hard work. A motion was unanimously carried that the Association record its appreciation of Rev. T. Magill's paper on "Christian Unity," and thanks for his timely and spiritual remarks during the session. Resolutions of thanks to the railroad companies for reduced rates and to the people of Reno for their cordial entertainment were passed.

The Association adjourned with the singing of "God be With You Till We Meet Again."

A WONDERFUL SESSION.

A Republican Discusses Legislative Proceedings.

Not for a score of years has two-thirds of a legislative term passed away without the railway monopoly question having been mooted; but the present seems to be an exceptional term and it might well be supposed that a reduction in freight and fares had been made on transcontinental and local roads and that general satisfaction prevailed. Probably the Interstate Commerce law has been the means of correcting all evils heretofore complained of, or that the public generally has arrived at the conclusion that it is better to bear present ills than rush to those we know not of. Let the cause be what it may, our present lawmakers seem to think all is right, for to them the roads are open and the Palace Hotel in San Francisco is reached as cheaply as heretofore.

The presence of Mr. Gaige is much missed and not all his henchmen can do makes up for the loss, for he was the guiding star in all controversies and his silver tongue all that was necessary to enable the lawmakers to steer clear of the shoals of anti-monopoly, on which so many elected to represent the people of Nevada have struck and been financially wrecked. So far the Legislature has perfected but little good or harm for the State, and judging from what it has accomplished it may be such that the monopoly question is kept in abeyance for another two years.

Fighting corporations is like battling with fire which is fed by kerosene oil, for past history proves how little good has accrued from fighting either.

Coin talks! Coin controls the whole affairs of the world, and as well might poor, impecunious men of brains attempt to effect a change of the earth's orbit in the solar system as to reduce the power of the "almighty dollar," for in everything it is king and so will continue until the talked of millennium shall occur. "The lion and the lamb lie down together and man eats straw like an ox." How is that for a quotation?

The above remarks are not intended to convey the idea that legislation in the matters referred to is absolutely necessary, and indeed it is, so, altogether too short a space of time remains to accomplish much, for it would seem that the projected retrenchment and reform movements which have occupied this Legislature so many weeks will be likely to occupy the remaining few days of the term, and the chances are that but little good will be the result. But it can do no harm to spend a little time in the consideration of railroad affairs, if only for the purpose of relegating to future Legislatures the bright ideas conceived by the present.

Just so long as the dominant party remains in power, just so gradually will our State of great promise retrograde from the great prosperity that was marked out for her, and so long as men are sent to the United States Senate whose whole aim is their own aggrandizement will the term "Rotten Burrough" be aptly applied to her. In the above remarks, I voice the sentiments of two-thirds of Ormsby county's old-time Republicans. The day is approaching when vox populi will be recognized, when Americans will rule America and monopolists taught their places in political affairs. PROPHET.
